Highlights

The district comprehensive planning process led to a May 2004 school bond election that passed with an 81% voter approval. The $5,000,000 bond is being used to construct a new high school and remodel other district schools. The new high school will be completed by December of 2005 and will allow for student growth in the district as well as improve educational programs.

Dual-credit classes for high school students have been expanded to allow high school students to earn college credit at the same time as they earn high school credit. In addition, new professional technical classes have been added in the areas of Medical Records and Cisco Networking.

School personnel regularly review student performance data to evaluate instructional programs and establish effective intervention and enrichment programs.
